SAGUARO NATIONAL PARK CELEBRATES 2012 NATIONAL PARK WEEK Entrance Fees Waived April 21st through April 29th

Tucson, AZ – In celebration of National Park Week, Saguaro National Park will waive entrance fees and offer special programs about our nation's parks.

Celebrating the theme, "Picture Yourself in a National Park", National Park Week will run from Saturday, April 21 through Sunday, April 29. America's 397 national parks offer many opportunities for outdoor recreation and while preserving the country's natural and cultural wonders. Our national parks allow us to marvel at spectacular natural scenery, and explore our nation's history through the American experience.

"National parks are part of the fabric of America", said Superintendent Darla Sidles. "National Park Week is an opportunity for families and communities to picture themselves in our national parks, reconnecting with nature and creating opportunities for people to get outside, be active, and have fun. This year's fee-free designation makes it the perfect week to visit Saguaro National Park."

During National Park Week, Saguaro is also offering a full slate of interpretive programs, as well as several special interpretive programs. Visit our website at www.nps.gov/sagu to learn more about the park, and for a listing of programs.
